Why a Website?

A properly designed website displaying your company's or organization's function, products and/or services will greatly enhance your exposure and client/customer contact.

What is Responsive Design?

A responsive website changes it's appearance and layout based on the size of the screen the website is displayed on. Responsive sites can be designed to make the text on the page larger and easier to read on smaller screens. They can also be configured to make the buttons on the phone's screen easier to press. More sophisticated ways of using responsive design on a mobile device include: formatting the website to hide or present entirely different information, radically changing the graphics and colors, or even reducing the site to emphasize just its most important piece.

Why?

"Day by day, the number of devices, platforms, and browsers that need to work with your site grows.

Responsive web design represents a fundamental shift in how we'll build websites for the decade to come."

- Jeffrey Veen
